

MARYLAND

Laura Herrera Scott, MD, MPH

Secretary of Health

Maryland Department of Health

Laura Herrera Scott, MD, MPH, is secretary of health for the Maryland Department of Health. Previously, she was the executive vice president of population health at Summit Health, where she was responsible for executing on Summit Health's value-based care strategy. Before this, she held several leadership positions at Anthem, the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and the Veterans Health Administration, where her work focused on population health, payment reform, and delivery system transformation to improve health status and outcomes in underserved communities. She received her degree in medicine from SUNY Health Science Center at Brooklyn and her master of public health from the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health.

